

Madonna Dougherty is currently the Principal Compliance Officer for Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory (APL), responsible for the Laboratory's Ethics & Compliance Program. Madonna has over 20 years of experience in a variety of federal contracting and legal positions for large businesses, small disadvantaged firms, and not-for-profit institutions. Before joining APL in 2012, Madonna spent 9 years at Lockheed Martin Corporation, and was a corporate subject matter expert on OCI for 6 of those years. A dynamic public speaker, Madonna has presented to large conferences, participated on OCI panels, industry groups, and educational seminars for NCMA and others. She has participated in industry association collaboration regarding the new proposed changes to FAR 9.5 on OCI. As an OCI subject matter expert, Madonna advises on a wide range of OCI issues, including development, SETA, and large scale production solicitations and contracts, as well as establishing and improving OCI policies and processes. She is a 1993 graduate of The Columbus School of Law, with a B.S. from University of Maryland in Accounting.